CONGRESS, DISGRUNTLED, TAKES A VACATION

HOUSE AND SENATE TURN FROM LABORS

THREATEN DIRE THINGS WHEN THEY RECONVENE NEXT FALL

TARIFF BILL TO BE THRESHED OUT WILL BE LENGTHY PROCEDURE

By PAUL R. MALLON
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Washington, June 20.—The house and senate turned their backs to each other and went off for their summer vacations today in opposite directions, sore and disgruntled, and threatening dire things against each other when they reconvene in the fall to thresh out a tariff bill.

The situation was so strained between the houses at the closing late yesterday that the house recessed without the courtesy of informing the senate of its action. Such disregard of the closing formalities is extremely unusual and gives indication of what bitter warfare may be expected when the senate revises the house tariff bill as senate leaders have promised.

The growing hate of the two houses for one another dates back to the start of the session. The house refused to organize many of its committees and thereby held up much senate legislation.

The senate in turn adopted and fought with the house for a month over the debenture or tariff bounty plan of farm relief. The house contended the senate invaded its prerogative in enacting such legislation and refused even to consider the debenture amendment, which was a strong affront to the senate.

Throughout the two months' special session, hot words were exchanged bak and forth, revealing animosities and perhaps jealousies over leadership, far beyond the usual friendly rivalries.

The house swallowed the senate's recess resolution only after a dispute and then decided it would recess until September 23 and do no business until October, although the senate returns August 19.

Impartial leaders believe the situation is growing ripe for a fight to the finish betwen the two houses over their authority.

Sub-committees were continuing today their hearings in the senate finance committee chambers, well up with their schedule which calls for concluding the hearings July 10. The full committee then will go into executive session to rewrite the house bill.

There is a general impression around the senate that the house will not recognize the bill by the time the senate gets through with it.

The sudden and silent recess of the house left the Jones prohibition resolution demanded by President Hoover, unpassed in the senate.

The resolution proposed appointment of a joint congressional committee to study plans for co-ordinating the various enforcement agencies of the government, particularly the question of transferring responsibility from the treasury to the justice department.

Brooklyn, N. Y., June 20.—(U.P.)—All was quiet along his beat today and Patrolman James Berry, pondering the heat, was glad things were so calm. But then he heard a piercing shriek. Wheeling about, he saw a woman collapse in front of 139 Kent street.

At the hospital to which they were taken it was said both mother and child were doing well.

The mother is Mrs. Mary Gumowski, 22. She explained she had left home to seek a doctor.

YOUNG HEFLIN DENIES USING ANY NARCOTICS

REPLIES TO CHARGES MADE BY POLICE OF WASHINGTON, D. C.

SAYS HE DID DRINK PINT OF GRAIN ALCOHOL AND GINGER ALE

Washington, June 20.—(U.P.)—James Thomas Heflin, Jr., son of the democratic senator from Alabama, denied to the United Press today he had used narcotics as charged by Washington police.

Heflin, waiting in his bondsman's office to be called next door to police court to face the charge said:

"I drank about a pint of grain alcohol mixed with two parts ginger ale at a party with some boys and girls in an apartment yesterday and that's all that was wrong with me when I ran into a truck at Seventh and Pennsylvania avenue."

"The cop asked me if I had been drinking and I told him no. I told him I had taken a veronol tablet as I had not been feeling well. You see I used the same excuse when I had been drinking at the University of Alabama and avoided getting suspended from school. A veronol tablet effects you like alcohol.

"When they took me to the hospital they said I'd been using all kinds of dope, morphine, cocaine and whatnot. Finally my doctor came in and they let me go home."

Young Heflin said he didn't know what his father would say but he "feared the worst."

"The senator is in Toledo, O., making a speech, thank goodness," he said, "you know I promised him to stop drinking when I returned from Panama and I really had been on the wagon from April 13 to June 14. Then I 'faw down and go boom with a bang!' "

Young Heflin denied he used narcotics in any form but said he once used veronol for a week after he had been on a spree in Alabama and his nerves were ragged.

Calcutta, June 20.—(UP)—Fears were expressed today that possibly several hundred persons were drowned in the disastrous floods which inundated the entire Cachar and adjoining districts of northeastern India.

Officials in charge of the relief workers from Assam stated that the extent of the disaster would not be known for several days. The devastating floods have affected an area of 5,000 square miles with a population of more than a million.

The heaviest losses, according to reports, were suffered in the Cachar district where 15,000 refugees were being cared for in one of the few areas not submerged by water.

St. Paul, June 20.—(UP)—No. 1 dividend of 10 per cent was paid to depositors of the closed Farmers and Merchants State Bank of Holloway, Minn., today by A. J. Veigel, state banking commissioner. The dividend amounted to 28,324.81. The bank was closed Nov. 22, 1926.

SEEK SOURCE OF HYDROGEN SULPHIDE SUPPLY

KILLED 2 CHILDREN NEAR EL PASO, OVERCAME AT LEAST 10 PERSONS

CAUSED GREAT LOSS OF LIVESTOCK IN SUBURB OF THE CITY

El Paso, Texas, June 20.—(UP)—Samples of the deadly gas that blanketed a small oil town near here, killing two small children and sending 10 persons to hospitals, were analyzed here today by county health officials in an effort to determine where it originated.

Dr. T. J. McCamant, county health officer, said he expected the gas came either from the Pasotex oil refinery in the village or from a newly laid natural gas pipe line which was put in use only a few days ago.

Ignacio Ceniceros, 3, and Dartolo Cenisceros, 8, brothers, were killed. Five of those in hospitals were reported in critical condition.

The gas spread through the community without warning. Its victims fell to the ground a few minutes after they first smelled the fumes.

Although the odor of the gas, believed to be hydrogen sulphide, was detected in many sections of the wide valley east of El Paso, it seemed to be concentrated about the Ceniceros home where the two brothers were killed and five members of the family rendered unconscious.

In the immediate vicinity several horses, goats, cows and chickens were killed.

The district affected is 200 yards west of the Pasotex refining plant and is near the pipe line.

Manuel Ceniceros, 16, first person to spread the alarm, said he was in front of his home playing ball when he suddenly saw his father running from the house, clutching at his throat.

"He called for me to get help," said Ceniceros. "He fell to the ground moaning. My sister Mary then came running from the house with the baby, Librado, in her arms. She fell down just after she screamed.

"Then I saw the whole family stagger from the house, groaning and clutching at their throats. The gas smelled like rotten eggs. I ran to a highway and told a man in an automobile to call police."

WISCONSIN HAS UNIQUE IDEAS ON PROHIBITION

HISTORIANS HASTEN TO ARCHIVES TO SEE IF STATE IS STILL IN UNION

SENATOR BERNARD GETTLEMAN WOULD PUT STATE INTO LIQUOR BUSINESS

By WILLARD R. SMITH
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Madison, Wis., June 20. — (UP) — Historians hastened to the archives today to establish whether Wisconsin, with its unique ideas about prohibition enforcement, still is in the union.

Senator Bernhard Gettleman, Milwaukee, who would put the state into the liquor busines, said he had been informed Wisconsin formally seceded from the union in 1857 over the fugitive slave law question and never had rescinded that action.

When repeal of the state dry law was proposed a few months ago, Wisconsin W. C. T. U. officers immediately set up the cry of "secession." The senator is of the opinion the "secession" came long ago.

Shelves of the state historical library were searched for light upon the subject of Wisconsin's quitting the union over the slave law as Gettleman compared that issue to the prohibition question and pointed to the possibility of another "Civil war" ensuing from present enforcement methods.

The Milwaukee senator has sponsored two novel legislative proposals concerning prohibition, one actually introduced and the other in preparation.

The one now pending seeks to amend the state constitution to permit manufacture and sale of intoxicating liquors by the state.

Today he began work on a proposal to create a state medical liquor commission with the idea of letting every man write his own prescription.

Gettleman offers constitutional argument to prove neither proposition contravenes the 18th amendment.

CASHIER OF CLOSED BANK NOW IN JAIL

Morris, Minn., June 20. — (U.P.) — Charged with grand larceny in the first degree, L. P. Mordby, cashier of the closed State Bank of Alberta, Minn., was lodged in the county jail here today.

The Alberta bank was closed Wednesday by the state banking department because of irregularities in the accounts. Mordby is alleged to have misappropriated a total of $21,000 over a period of four years.

The cashier, who is 56 years old and the father of several grown children, is charged specifically with the embezzlement of $25,000.

The warrant was issued by R. G. Cushing, Stevens county attorney, today.

Metamore, Ind., June 20.—(U.P.)—Using an ax as a weapon, John Baker, 55, farmer, today hacked his 23-year-old son, Raymond, to death and then inflicted injuries to himself, dying after a leap into a 20 foot well.

BRAZORIA, TEX., PRISON FARM IS SCENE OF BREAK

LARGE POSSE OF CITIZENS AND OFFICERS SEARCH COUNTRYSIDE FOR CONVICTS

GUARDS WERE DISARMED AND THEN RELEASED BY ESCAPING PRISONERS

Houston, Texas, June 20.—(UP)—Four guards were overpowered, disarmed and kidnaped before dawn today by some 40 or 50 prisoners who escaped from Clemens state prison farm in Brazoria county.

With daylight, Capt. W. M. Hickman, farm manager, had assembled a large posse of officers and citizens and was searching Brazoria and adjoining counties for convicts.

Little information concerning the break was available to the outside world. Mrs. Hickman, the manager's wife, was alone on the farm at 8:30 A. M. and said that she knew very few details.

Shortly after daylight the four guards who had been kidnaped, returned to the farm, Mrs. Hickman declared, but they left to join the chase before anyone could talk with them about their experiences.

Mrs. Hickman did not know how the large number of prisoners left the farm, whether by auto or some other prearranged method. She only knew that the guards returned disarmed.

When word of the escape reached Houston, five members of the police department, armed with .30-30 rifles, left in a car for the scene and Sheriff Binford sent a corps of deputies.

PARIS PAPERS TAKE SHOT AT YOUNG SCHREIBER

STOWAWAY SAILING FOR HOME ON THE STEAMER LEVIATHAN

TO SHARE VAUDEVILLE EARNINGS IN UNITED STATES WITH FLIERS

Paris, June 20.—(UP)—While it was understood that everyone had forgiven Arthur Schreiber, young American trans-Atlantic stowaway on the monoplane Yellow Bird, the Parisian newspapers took a parting shot at him as he prepared to sail for home today on the Leviathan.

The aviators—Jean Assolant, Rene Lefevre and Armeno Lotti — long since have forgiven the Portland, Me., lad for spoiling their chances of reaching their destination, Paris, from Old Orchard, Me. The parents of the fliers whose lives were endangered by the added weight of the stowaway also have expressed their forgiveness.

"What punishment awaits him in the United States?" was the question asked in today's newspapers.

"Certainly he will have something to answer for to the American authorities, who are not used to having their regulations played about with," was the opinion expressed by Petit Parisien.

Le Petit Journal criticized Schreiber for his parting statement that he would share his vaudeville earnings in the United States with the fliers. Le Petit Journal added:

"This shows he is not capable to rise to the heights of the glory which has fallen upon him."

PETITION FOR REMOVAL OF SHERIFF DENIED

St. Paul, June 20.—(UP)—Petition for the removal of Edgard G. Stewart, St. Cloud, Benton county sheriff, was denied today by Governor Theodore Christianson.

The governor returned the petition, which came to him from Harry E. Burns, Benton county attorney, with the statement that it is not in such form as to warrant action of the governor.

The petition, the governor pointed out, is not addressed to him but to Burns, to whom its signers originally sent it with charges that the sheriff's removal should be effected because he had been intoxicated while on duty.

El Paso, Texas, June 20.—(UP)—Samples of the deadly gas that blanketed a small oil town near here, killing two small children and sending 10 persons to hospitals, were analyzed here today by county health officials in an effort to determine where it originated.

WISCONSIN HAS UNIQUE IDEAS ON PROHIBITION

HISTORIANS HASTEN TO ARCHIVES TO SEE IF STATE IS STILL IN UNION

SENATOR BERNARD GETTLEMAN WOULD PUT STATE INTO LIQUOR BUSINESS

By WILLARD R. SMITH
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Madison, Wis., June 20. — (U.P.) — Historians hastened to the archives today to establish whether Wisconsin, with its unique ideas about prohibition enforcement, still is in the union.

Senator Bernhard Gettleman, Milwaukee, who would put the state into the liquor busines, said he had been informed Wisconsin formally seceded from the union in 1857 over the fugitive slave law question and never had rescinded that action.

When repeal of the state dry law was proposed a few months ago, Wisconsin W. C. T. U. officers immediately set up the cry of "secession." The senator is of the opinion the "secession" came long ago.

Shelves of the state historical library were searched for light upon the subject of Wisconsin's quitting the union over the slave law as Gettleman compared that issue to the prohibition question and pointed to the possibility of another "Civil war" ensuing from present enforcement methods.

The Milwaukee senator has sponsored two novel legislative proposals concerning prohibition, one actually introduced and the other in preparation.

The one now pending seeks to amend the state constitution to permit manufacture and sale of intoxicating liquors by the state.

Today he began work on a proposal to create a state medical liquor commission with the idea of letting every man write his own prescription.

Gettleman offers constitutional argument to prove neither proposition contravenes the 18th amendment.

CASHIER OF CLOSED BANK NOW IN JAIL

Morris, Minn., June 20. — (U.P.) — Charged with grand larceny in the first degree, L. P. Mordby, cashier of the closed State Bank of Alberta, Minn., was lodged in the county jail here today.

The Alberta bank was closed Wednesday by the state banking department because of irregularities in the accounts. Mordby is alleged to have misappropriated a total of $21,000 over a period of four years.

The cashier, who is 56 years old and the father of several grown children, is charged specifically with the embezzlement of $25,000.

The warrant was issued by R. G. Cushing, Stevens county attorney, today.

CRAZED FARMER SLAYS SON, THEN JUMPS INTO WELL

Metamore, Ind., June 20.—(U.P.)—Using an ax as a weapon, John Baker, 55, farmer, today hacked his 23-year-old son, Raymond, to death and then inflicted injuries to himself, dying after a leap into a 20 foot well.

Neighbors said Baker had shown signs of insanity for several months.

BRAZORIA, TEX., PRISON FARM IS SCENE OF BREAK

LARGE POSSE OF CITIZENS AND OFFICERS SEARCH COUNTRYSIDE FOR CONVICTS

GUARDS WERE DISARMED AND THEN RELEASED BY ESCAPING PRISONERS

Houston, Texas, June 20.—(UP)—Four guards were overpowered, disarmed and kidnaped before dawn today by some 40 or 50 prisoners who escaped from Clemens state prison farm in Brazoria county.

With daylight, Capt. W. M. Hickman, farm manager, had assembled a large posse of officers and citizens and was searching Brazoria and adjoining counties for convicts.

Little information concerning the break was available to the outside world. Mrs. Hickman, the manager's wife, was alone on the farm at 8:30 A. M. and said that she knew very few details.

Shortly after daylight the four guards who had been kidnaped, returned to the farm, Mrs. Hickman declared, but they left to join the chase before anyone could talk with them about their experiences.

Mrs. Hickman did not know how the large number of prisoners left the farm, whether by auto or some other prearranged method. She only knew that the guards returned disarmed.

When word of the escape reached Houston, five members of the police department, armed with .30-30 rifles, left in a car for the scene and Sheriff Binford sent a corps of deputies.

PARIS PAPERS TAKE SHOT AT YOUNG SCHREIBER

STOWAWAY SAILING FOR HOME ON THE STEAMER LEVIATHAN

TO SHARE VAUDEVILLE EARNINGS IN UNITED STATES WITH FLIERS

Paris, June 20.—(UP)—While it was understood that everyone had forgiven Arthur Schreiber, young American trans-Atlantic stowaway on the monoplane Yellow Bird, the Parisian newspapers took a parting shot at him as he prepared to sail for home today on the Leviathan.

The aviators—Jean Assolant, Rene Lefevre and Armeno Lotti — long since have forgiven the Portland, Me., lad for spoiling their chances of reaching their destination, Paris, from Old Orchard, Me. The parents of the fliers whose lives were endangered by the added weight of the stowaway also have expressed their forgiveness.

"What punishment awaits him in the United States?" was the question asked in today's newspapers.

"Certainly he will have something to answer for to the American authorities, who are not used to having their regulations played about with," was the opinion expressed by Petit Parisien.

Le Petit Journal criticized Schreiber for his parting statement that he would share his vaudeville earnings in the United States with the fliers. Le Petit Journal added:

"This shows he is not capable to rise to the heights of the glory which has fallen upon him."

PETITION FOR REMOVAL OF SHERIFF DENIED

St. Paul, June 20.—(UP)—Petition for the removal of Edgard G. Stewart, St. Cloud, Benton county sheriff, was denied today by Governor Theodore Christianson.

The governor returned the petition, which came to him from Harry E. Burns, Benton county attorney, with the statement that it is not in such form as to warrant action of the governor.

The petition, the governor pointed out, is not addressed to him but to Burns, to whom its signers originally sent it with charges that the sheriff's removal should be effected because he had been intoxicated while on duty.

COOLIDGE LAYS DOWN PRINCIPLES GUIDING BUSINESS

"DON'T DO ANYTHING YOURSELF THAT SOMEONE ELSE CAN DO FOR YOU"

"WHEN YOU ENTRUST DETAILS, BE SURE THAT PERSON IS COMPETENT"

By MORRIS DE HAVEN TRACY
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

New York, June 20—Calvin Coolidge lays down a group of guiding principles for men who are at the head of great organizations in an article to be published in the American Magazine.

They include:

Don't do anything yourself that someone else can do for you.

When you entrust details to someone else, be sure that person is competent.

While it is wise to get all the competent advice possible in the case of the president "final judgments are necessarily his own."

"If others make mistakes,' the former president writes, "they can be relieved and oftentimes a remedy can be provided. But he (the president) cannot retire. His decisions are final and usually irreparable. This constitutes the appalling burden of his office."

Coolidge goes into detail to describe his day's routine in the White House.

At 6:30 A .M. he arose, and shaved himself with an old fashioned razor "which I knew how to keep in good condition," and then took a short walk. Then he had breakfast with Mrs. Coolidge.

"For me there was fruit and about one half cup of coffee," he writes, "with a homemade cereal obtained from boiling together two parts of unground wheat with one part of rye. To this was added a roll and strip of bacon, which mostly went to our dogs."

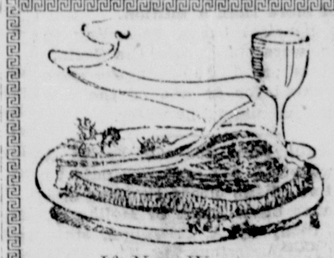

Then he tells of the long daily routine of dictating speeches and letters, receiving callers, guests at luncheon, guests at dinner and a busy day ending with him still working about 10 P. M.

He attached great importance to social functions and takes time to explain that the order of social precedence which has been under so much discussion of late, is necessary.

"It would make great confusion," he writes, "in all White House relations, unless the rules of precedence were observed. If this were not done, the most ambitious and intruding would seize the place of honor or it would be bestowed by favor."

Health Hint

It is extremely unwise to neglect a cough. If ordinary remedies fail it is always best to consult a physician for a chest examination to see whether the inflammation is spreading. Why court the possibilities of lung trouble?

Nobody says "false teeth" any more. Even "artificial teeth" is rather bad form. If you want to be jocose and hearty about it you can say "store teeth," but the most elegant and nice way is to talk about "plates."—American Magazine.

"For me there was fruit and about one half cup of coffee," he writes, "with a homemade cereal obtained from boiling together two parts of unground wheat with one part of rye. To this was added a roll and strip of bacon, which mostly went to our dogs."

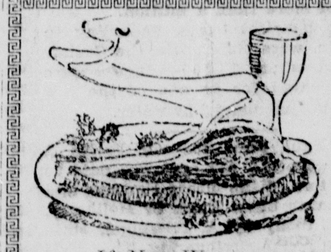

Then he tells of the long daily routine of dictating speeches and letters, receiving callers, guests at luncheon, guests at dinner and a busy day ending with him still working about 10 P. M.

He attached great importance to social functions and takes time to explain that the order of social precedence which has been under so much discussion of late, is necessary.

"It would make great confusion," he writes, "in all White House relations, unless the rules of precedence were observed. If this were not done, the most ambitious and intruding would seize the place of honor or it would be bestowed by favor."

TWO TIE FOR SECOND

Winner Assures Public the Royal American Shows is no Fake

Seven newsboys subimtted stories regarding their trip through the Royal American shows on Tuesday evening.

The judges had a difficult time in selecting the best stories as all were considered very good. After much deliberation, they chose Harold Strickler, 404 Third ave. northeast for the first prize, but the others were even harder to choose between in giving second honors. Milton Anderson, N. E. Brainerd and Ernest Erickson, S. E. Brainerd both submitted stories of equal rating, and they tied for second place.

Mr. Barnett of the Royal American shows will give Harold Strickler his reward this evening.

The other boys who submitted very interesting accounts of their trip are Paul Dahlson, 1008 Rosewood street, S. E., Melvin Satre, S. E. Brainerd, Ralph Strickler, 404 third avenue N. E., and Bennie Erickson, S. E. Brainerd.

The stories written by Harold Strickler, Milton Anderson and Ernest Erickson follow:

MY TRIP THROUGH THE CARNIVAL

By HAROLD STRICKLER

There certainly was no loafing on my route, as soon as I found out that I was going to see all the side shows and take in all the rides of the Royal American Shows free! I made my route in double quick time. All along the route the people were smiling and evidently the paper boy had eventually gotten some pep into his system.

When I got out to the grounds, I saw what was the largest carnival I had even seen. A man from the head office and two girls from the Dispatch took us 25 paper boys around and showed us the right way to make Whoopee!

I am not going to tell the things in order as we saw them, that would be almost impossible for there were so many interesting and exciting things happening one right after another, that my head was almost swimming and as I think of it now, the whole evening was one grand thrill.

First there was the Ferris wheel which was a large double one. Twice it was stopped when I was on top. One certainly gets a good view of the surrounding country from up there. Then came the ride on the Lindy Loop. The way this thing went made us think that we were going to turn over every second.

Then the guide took us to the buggy ride. At first I thought I was being cheated because we wound in and out dark alleys. At the end we sat down on a bench, then the benca vanished and we ended up through a chute. We also had a ride on the caterpillar and the Dragon. In the Dragon we were bumped, jumped and blown along, when we came out we had all about decided that the Dragon could not digest us very well.

Later we saw some human freaks as the four legged lady and the armless and legless man and the fat man and woman who could see blindfolded. The sword swallower sure was a slick one, he told us to try it, that it was very easy, but I haven't picked up enough courage yet to try, it seems too risky. We also saw a woman that sat in an electric chair charged with 950 volts. I wouldn't care to try her stunt either.

After this we took in the monkey show in which a monkey rode a tricycle and did a high dive and several other clever things. The guide took us to fun in the barn. All we could say about it when we got out was that we didn't know whether we were on our feet or our heads and that it as a very mysterious barn. Then there was a lady who seemed to be all head and no body, this is mighty hard to believe but what you see you see. And to top our grand time off we had a ride in the Whip and the Merry Mix Up, which had us going to keep ourselves together.

We all went away about 11 o'clock feeling very grateful to our guide and fully satisfied that the Royal Ameican Shows was no fake, but the reat thing.

MY TRIP TO THE CARNIVAL

By MILTON ANDERSON

Boy! Isn't this great? We get into everything in the carnival free. This is once I am glad I'm a newsboy. Such were the expressions heard at the Dispatch office Tuesday evening when the boys received their free tickets to the carnival. We were told to be at the carnival grounds at 8 o'clock sharp and we all showed up.

The first thing we took in was the Ferris wheel, from which we could see all over the carnival grounds as well as all over the city. From there we went to the Caterpillar. This sure was fun. Exciting? I'll say so and plenty of thrills too. Next was the "Lindy Loop" the first thing of its kind that I have ever seen. I would advise anyone who wants thrills to by all means take this. Then came that famous old "Dragon." Anyone who wants a good ride should be sure not to miss this. After that came the "Merry Mix Up" which is very exciting as well as a great deal of fun. Then there was the "Buggy Ride." That was fun galore and I believe it was the most fun of them all. I think that this is the best remedy for the blues, and everyone should take this exciting ride.

The rides being finished we went to the shows. Anyone going to the carnival for educational purposes should see the "freak" animals and the Coney Island Side Show. For fun and entertainment see Pal, the Monkey Circus, the Coney Island Side Show and the Outlaws. I sure was glad that I had a free ticket and I enjoyed the carnival immensely.

THROUGH THE ROYAL AMERICAN SHOWS

By ERNEST ERICKSON

We, a crowd of boys ranging between the ages of ten to 15, were the Dispatch carriers who were to be guests of the Royal American Shows. We were to meet at the office of the carnival and a man, Robson Barnett, and two of the Dispatch force were to meet us and take us through the whole carnival.

We went to the Ferris wheel first. It was a double wheel and half of us were separated and we had to call to our friends. It was a lot of fun though we were shaky when it stopped wth us at the top.

Next we went to the caterpillar. When we started the caterpillar's skin or cover went over us and stayed there till the ride was over. We went up and down and over a windy place. All of a sudden the skin or cover went back and the ride was all over.

Lindy Loop was next and we almost looped the loop when we were rocking back and forth. It stopped altogether too quickly because it was a lot of fun.

We went to a sideshow where there were many wonders such as the four legged girl, the snakes, the girl who sat in an electric chair, the sword swallower who really swallowed swords. Rex the armless and legless man did things that any person could do. It was a lot of fun watching Rex.

The Buggy ride was next and sure was a ride, we turned many corners and finally to a room where there was a sign that said "sit down all the way." There was a nice leather chair and I sat down and the chair seemed to fall apart and I slid down a chute to a place where a rug was turning around and fell on that and I was pulled down on my back and then thrown off. It sure was fun.

Next was the Merry Mix Up. We sat in a legless chair and chained in. The chair hung from a place where it was connected to a revolving pole and we were whirled around in the air many times and when it stopped though we were dizzy we wanted to ride some more.

We went to sideshow where I saw the fattest man and woman I had ever seen. The lady danced a little. They could easily break some scales.

The Dragon was the newest machine to me and the best. It seemed to eat one chair after another. We were rocking back and forth so much somebody said it had indigestion and I said the lungs must have busted from the way the air was coming up. It was the best of all.

We went to the monkey show next and saw little monkeys do all sorts of things.

The Barn was the funniest building I had ever been in. There were so many turns that we got kind of scared and it was pitch dark. We hit cows ears and tails. The floor revolved in one room and the floor caved in at the exit.

"Say, we missed the Whip hey" was heard, the whip must have been reserved for more thrills. It seemed like we were to be thrown off at each corner. It was second to the best.

Laughland was the last and we had to "laugh our heads off."

We had all kinds of fun on the riding devices and there were no "fakes" in the side shows.

Every boy can hardly express his thanks to the Royal American Shows.

Summer Months Hard on Stomach Sufferers

Quick, Natural Relief from Simple Herbal Compound

How much suffering a weak stomach can cause! Painful gas, bloating, sleeplessness, loss of weight—vigor. Bad enough at any time, but when exhausting summer heat is added, strength is drained from the sturdiest body.

But here is one of many thousands who found a way to relief:

Mrs. C. A. Warner, of 502 First St. South, Aberdeen, S. D., says: "I suffered so from indigestion, kidney trouble and complete breakdown that I was in misery. Tanlac brought wonderful relief and soon had me eating everything. That tired, run-down feeling was over."

It's never too late to try Tanlac. So go to your druggist now and get a bottle. No mineral drugs—only Nature's own medicinal herbs, but its efficacy is so apparent that often only one bottle is needed to bring desired relief. Money back if it doesn't help.

Vicious Literature

Secret distribution of vicious literature, distorting the truth in an effort to mislead the public, cannot offset the fact that only the finest tobacco—the cream of the crop—is used in Lucky Strike Cigarettes. Leaders of sport, art and fashion testify to the improved flavor. 20,679* physicians say toasting does in fact make Luckies less irritating to the throat. And the public confirms these opinions. Increase in sales, greater than all other cigarettes combined, prove world-wide confidence in Lucky Strike.

COUNCIL RESOLUTION SOMEWHAT UNJUST

THE resolution passed by the city council at its last meeting concerning the conditions at the Lyceum theatre, while true in most respects, was not in accordance with the facts as to the insanitary conditions of the theatre. In fact, with the old inadequate equipment he has, Manager Hiller has kept the Lyceum building, both the auditorium and the upstairs, unusually clean, and as well ventilated as is possible with the facilities for ventilation that are provided.

As to the facilities provided by the management for a motion picture theatre adequate to a city of the size and importance of Brainerd, too much cannot be said in condemnation.

True, the management has promised to correct this condition, but it is moving so slowly in the matter that the members of the council, as well as other citizens, are becoming very impatient at what seems to be unnecessary delay in making good its promises. Let us hope the resolution of the council will result in more speedy action.

MAKE PUNISHMENT SURE AND SWIFT

PRESIDENT HOOVER'S crime commission, who are to investigate the whole problem, not only how to better to enforce the 18th amendment, but the violation of other laws, will do well to study the British system, of which most of the eminent legal lights on the commission are well informed, says the St. Cloud Daily Journal-Press.

An expert writing on the less crime in England compared with the United States, says that Scotland Yard is the most effective preventive, composed of highly trained criminal chasers, and when a crime is committed in any portion of that country these experts are given the task of running down the criminals. Dependence is not placed on the local officers of the smaller communities who naturally lack skill and training.

Scotland Yard men are naturally well informed as to the criminal population, and when a crime is committed they usually make speedy arrests.

Back of Scotland Yard are the courts, and on this point the expert says:

"In English courts evasion, technicalities and red tape, designed to cloud the facts, are unknown. Immediately on commission of a crime, expert detectives are given the evidence and in most cases find the criminal. He is immediately tried, sentenced and adequately punished."

The Unitde States being a much larger country and having no detective agency so well equipped as Scotland Yard, has to depend largely on the police forces of the various cities and of the sheriffs of the many counties. There is not the concentration of authority or of training.

The American laws, when attacked by clever attorneys, afford many ways of delay, and the underworld cult have the shrewdest attorneys that money can hire.

First America lacks an efficient detective force, and second when criminals are arrested, there is too often long delays in bringing them to trial, and when convicted in the lower courts, appeals are taken from court to court to delay the serving of sentences, and many have been the escapes of the criminal through legal technicalities.

Banditry is even more a menace than bootlegging, and no city has been able to suppress it, for obvious reasons.

This crime commission can perform a most valuable help to the country by some well defined and practical revision of our criminal codes, to make detection of crime more certain and conviction more sure.

England has shown the way.

TROOP MOVEMENT ON TO MILLE LACS LAKE

ONE of the greatest troop movements in peace time maneuvers is being carried out "right" in our neighborhood.

Advancing well into territory held by an imaginary foe, columns of troops and mule trains from Fort Snelling yesterday moved on Milaca from Princeton. The latter town was a point on their line of travel from Fort Snelling to Mille Lacs lake.

Engaged in a practice march with a number of days rest at the lake as the final objective, more than 600 officers and men of the third infantry, regular army, broke camp at Princeton early yesterday and headed northward.

Milaca, in this war game which Colonel W. C. Sweeney, commandant, arranged for his men, is an important terminal. It has highway and railroad connections which are very helpful to the northern Minnesota forces which the third infantry, as southern Minnesota forces, seek to expel from the state. Northern forces are approaching from the northeast and northwest.

The southern Minnesota army, or "Blues," are better organized than the northern "Reds," under the terms of the general order which announced the hypothetical declaration of war. Because of this, the southern army was mobilized along the northern boundary of its territory, comprising roughly Washington, Sherburne, Stearns, Pope, Stevens and Traverse counties.

The northward movement is the most extensive maneuver of troops in Minnesota since the World war and is attracting considerable attention. Many watched the procession from Princeton on while in the evening many visited the encampment, and heard the Third infantry band play.

From Milaca the troops will go to Bay View on Mille Lacs lake to camp several days. They are due back at the fort July 2.

CAN'T GET SOMETHING FOR NOTHING

BRUCE BARTON, the celebrated author and writer, suggests that each nation which signed the Kellogg peace pact, discontinue the building of one battleship and devote that savings to a continuous advertising campaign to explain and re-explain the treaty and cultivate a sense of international responsibility and good will.

A first-class battleship costs around $35,000,000. If the advertising fraternity of the United States were entrusted with $2,000,000 per year for 17 years, we could make the Kellogg treaty mean something in the consciousness of the American people.

Barton says: "Statesmen are proceeding on the assumption that peace can be purchased for nothing. If that be true, then peace differs from every other worthwhile object in the world."

When the world works as hard to prepare for peace as it does to prepare for war, some astonishing results will follow. But probably not before.—Verndale Sun.

Daphne by HAZEL LIVINGSTON

CHAPTER LI.

"AS soon as the business is settled, I'm going back to the city," Crystal announced when they were driving back from the cemetery in the Orville Wagner mourners' limousine.

"Me too!" Adelina said hastily, adjusting her widow's weeds, which were a little askew. With Abner six feet underground she felt safer. And hadn't Fred Roach, the realtor held her hand a bit longer than was necessary in offering his condolence? It was plain he admired her . . .

"All right. Only you're not going to come park on me. Get that in your head right away!"

"Why Crystal, is that any way to talk to Mama?"

"Don't start sniffling again, for heaven's sake. I just want to make it clear, that's all. I knew that would be the first thing you'd think of."

Adelina bridled. "Is that so? The poor old lady come to live on her daughter. Well! Let me tell you I have other plans, Miss, and don't you forget it. I can look out for myself, thank you; I am perfectly independent. Don't you forget that I am the widow, entitled to the bulk of the estate——"

"Oh, you'll get the bulk of it all right. You don't need to remind me of that, Mama. And I know better than to come to you for anything. I know you. Every dollar I've ever got out of you I've had to get down on my knees and beg for. It's a good thing I've got other friends, that's all—I'd have starved to death if I had to depend on you and that old skinflint of a husband of yours—counting every nickel——"

"Shh—don't speak ill of the dead, Crystal. He was a good——"

"Yes; I know what he was. Don't start that. As I said, it's a good thing I had other friends——"

"You'll never have another friend like your mother. And mama don't want you should talk that way. Mama knows you been a good girl, working hard at your art work and all, but what will other people think—" (with a side look at Daphne) "hearing you talk like that? Mama won't have it, You got to be more careful——"

"Mama—will you shut up?"

"No, I won't shut up. I'm advising you for your own good, and I don't want Daphne should think anything funny about you—"

Crystal laughed out loud at that. "Mama, you are so quaint! You even make me laugh, and when I can get a laugh out of coming back to the farm . . . oh, well! How soon do we get the money? Daphne, you're almost a lawyer, how long do these things take?"

"I don't know," Daphne said, and wriggled still deeper into her corner. It was almost unbearable. Reflected in the window she could see Adelina's face, red and bloated under the brassy hair. She could see her mean little eyes, her cruel, sensual mouth. "Poor father!" she thought, "he was lucky to get away. It would have been terrible for him if he had lived and been helpless, with her to nag him . . ."

But even that thought was not much confort. She sat, dry-eyed and tragic in her corner. As long as he had lived she had thought, "Some day he'll be different. Some day we'll get to really know each other . . ." And now he was dead. The day she had dreamed of would never come. He died as he had lived, a stranger to her. Unless it were that little moment at the end when he looked at her and tried to say something . . .

"Well, here we are," Adelina was saying.

They were back at the old house. The sun was shining, the orchard was a mass of feathery bloom. It was still beautiful, still Spring. And there were potatoes to peel, and peas to shell for dinner. Old Man Haines was dead but they had to go on living.

* * *

Crystal and Daphne sat up late, talking. Crystal was in one of her best moods, good-natured, scintillating, disarmingly frank.

"Mama would faint if she knew the truth about me," she said and giggled.

Daphne thought of Flora, and the things that Flora had hinted. The expensive apartment. That artist. Ralph. . .

"You mean — about your friends?"

"Yes, though I haven't so many at that. Just a few nuts and artists and a couple of big butter and egg men. By the way, did you make any friends in town?" Crystal asked curiously.

"Not so many. Just a couple where I live, and one or two where I work——"

"See much of McKevitt?"

Daphne bit her lip. But Crystal seemed so sincere, so honestly interested. As if she didn't care whether Daphne met him every evening or not . . . "No, I don't see him much. Not—not as much as I'd like to," she admitted, determined to be as frank as Crystal.

"I thought as much. He's a funny one. He's either bombarding the doorstep, or giving you the absent treatment. Mama thinks he'd be the ideal husband——"

Daphne's heart turned a somersault and seemed to rise and stick in her throat. Ralph. . . Crystal's husband . . .

"But I'm not so sure," Crystal went on, thoughtfuly. "He isn't so hot. I think it's up to a girl to look around a bit first."

Daphne began to breathe naturally again.

"Of course, all Mama can see is matrimony. That's the way with those old fashioned gold-diggers. But I don't know, I think a girl can do as well without it. Now I have a friend, Avery Woodward his name is . . . honestly, Daphne, I'm just mad over that man, and still I wouldn't marry him—not for a mint! I'd lose him, just like that, if I did. And then sometimes I think men are more generous when they aren't married to you than when they are. If you play your hand right. Still . . . the bills I have! I'm of a naturally optimistic nature, but I swear to goodness I don't know what I'd have done if your dear Pa hadn't kicked off about now.

"I don't know where the devil they came from. Say, I wonder how much we'll get? Do you think Mama has been cheating on us? I'll bet she's got a hoard somewhere about the house. What do you say we look? How about that cracked teapot in the sideboard? Or under the oilcloth on the kitchen table? What do you think, Daphne?"

Daphne shook her head seriously. "I don't think that there is much money left." She hesitated for a moment, then she added resolutely, "You might as well know it—I've been sending money home for quite a while. They needed it for the taxes and the interest on money father borrowed."

Crystal's mouth hung open. She looked at her step-sister with contemptuous pity that she made no attempt to conceal. "Well, you are the prize idiot!" she said at last.

From upstairs came Adelina's shrill tremolo, "Ain't you girls coming to bed? I won't shut my eyes till you do!"

"She even talks in her sleep," Crystal groaned. "Well — we might as well go up. This is the night before Christmas."

"The what?"

"The night before Christmas, same as I said before," Crystal continued, and did a few dance steps. "There's a lot you don't know, Daphne darling, and one of them is we see dear Papa's lawyer tomorrow!"

They went to Mr. Harris's office in San Jose, Dahpne and Crystal and her mother. Mr. Turner, the neighbor, drove them in to town in his ramshackle flivver and Crystal complained bitterly because there wasn't any top and the sun would fade her new blue hat.

"You ought to be wearing black anyhow!" Adelina retorted. "I'd like to know how it looks, the two of you going to collect my dead husband's money and not a stitch of mourning."

Daphne, wedged in the back seat between them, flushed guiltily, but didn't answer. She knew what the neighbors had said about her tan coat at the funeral, but she wasn't really mourning for her father, who was almost a stranger in spite of the years they had lived under the same roof, and she wasn't going to be a hypocrite.

But Crystal was angry. "I'm sure you've got on enough crepe for the whole family. You'd look a little more inconsolable though if you'd wipe off some of that paint. Good Lord, how I hate to see an old woman all made up. I hope when I'm your age I'll have enough sense to take to bonnets and not try to look young——"

Adelina rubbed at a bright pink cheek. "Is that any way to talk to Mama? When I was just trying to look a little brighter—"

"You succeeded all right. If you could see yourself in that bright sun! Don't you look in the mirror when you . . . here—let me—"

Adelina burst out crying then, and with a smothered "All right—do as you like," Crystal jerked away and slumped back in her corner.

It was a terrible ride. How can they do it, Daphne wondered? How can they fight that way? And yet she knew that for all their bickering they were prepared to take sides against her. Not that she cared. She knew there wouldn't be anything left to divide. Knew it long before they were sitting in Mr. Harris' dark little office and he had finished breaking the news.

COUNCIL RESOLUTION SOMEWHAT UNJUST

THE resolution passed by the city council at its last meeting concerning the conditions at the Lyceum theatre, while true in most respects, was not in accordance with the facts as to the insanitary conditions of the theatre. In fact, with the old inadequate equipment he has, Manager Hiller has kept the Lyceum building, both the auditorium and the upstairs, unusually clean, and as well ventilated as is possible with the facilities for ventilation that are provided.

As to the facilities provided by the management for a motion picture theatre adequate to a city of the size and importance of Brainerd, too much cannot be said in condemnation.

True, the management has promised to correct this condition, but it is moving so slowly in the matter that the members of the council, as well as other citizens, are becoming very impatient at what seems to be unnecessary delay in making good its promises. Let us hope the resolution of the council will result in more speedy action.

MAKE PUNISHMENT SURE AND SWIFT

PRESIDENT HOOVER'S crime commission, who are to investigate the whole problem, not only how to better to enforce the 18th amendment, but the violation of other laws, will do well to study the British system, of which most of the eminent legal lights on the commission are well informed, says the St. Cloud Daily Journal-Press.

An expert writing on the less crime in England compared with the United States, says that Scotland Yard is the most effective preventive, composed of highly trained criminal chasers, and when a crime is committed in any portion of that country these experts are given the task of running down the criminals. Dependence is not placed on the local officers of the smaller communities who naturally lack skill and training.

Scotland Yard men are naturally well informed as to the criminal population, and when a crime is committed they usually make speedy arrests.

Back of Scotland Yard are the courts, and on this point the expert says:

"In English courts evasion, technicalities and red tape, designed to cloud the facts, are unknown. Immediately on commission of a crime, expert detectives are given the evidence and in most cases find the criminal. He is immediately tried, sentenced and adequately punished."

The Unitde States being a much larger country and having no detective agency so well equipped as Scotland Yard, has to depend largely on the police forces of the various cities and of the sheriffs of the many counties. There is not the concentration of authority or of training.

The American laws, when attacked by clever attorneys, afford many ways of delay, and the underworld cult have the shrewdest attorneys that money can hire.

First America lacks an efficient detective force, and second when criminals are arrested, there is too often long delays in bringing them to trial, and when convicted in the lower courts, appeals are taken from court to court to delay the serving of sentences, and many have been the escapes of the criminal through legal technicalities.

Banditry is even more a menace than bootlegging, and no city has been able to suppress it, for obvious reasons.

This crime commission can perform a most valuable help to the country by some well defined and practical revision of our criminal codes, to make detection of crime more certain and conviction more sure.

England has shown the way.

TROOP MOVEMENT ON TO MILLE LACS LAKE

ONE of the greatest troop movements in peace time maneuvers is being carried out "right" in our neighborhood.

Advancing well into territory held by an imaginary foe, columns of troops and mule trains from Fort Snelling yesterday moved on Milaca from Princeton. The latter town was a point on their line of travel from Fort Snelling to Mille Lacs lake.

Engaged in a practice march with a number of days rest at the lake as the final objective, more than 600 officers and men of the third infantry, regular army, broke camp at Princeton early yesterday and headed northward.

Milaca, in this war game which Colonel W. C. Sweeney, commandant, arranged for his men, is an important terminal. It has highway and railroad connections which are very helpful to the northern Minnesota forces which the third infantry, as southern Minnesota forces, seek to expel from the state. Northern forces are approaching from the northeast and northwest.

The southern Minnesota army, or "Blues," are better organized than the northern "Reds," under the terms of the general order which announced the hypothetical declaration of war. Because of this, the southern army was mobilized along the northern boundary of its territory, comprising roughly Washington, Sherburne, Stearns, Pope, Stevens and Traverse counties.

The northward movement is the most extensive maneuver of troops in Minnesota since the World war and is attracting considerable attention. Many watched the procession from Princeton on while in the evening many visited the encampment, and heard the Third infantry band play.

From Milaca the troops will go to Bay View on Mille Lacs lake to camp several days. They are due back at the fort July 2.

CAN'T GET SOMETHING FOR NOTHING

BRUCE BARTON, the celebrated author and writer, suggests that each nation which signed the Kellogg peace pact, discontinue the building of one battleship and devote that savings to a continuous advertising campaign to explain and re-explain the treaty and cultivate a sense of international responsibility and good will.

A first-class battleship costs around $35,000,000. If the advertising fraternity of the United States were entrusted with $2,000,000 per year for 17 years, we could make the Kellogg treaty mean something in the consciousness of the American people.

Barton says: "Statesmen are proceeding on the assumption that peace can be purchased for nothing. If that be true, then peace differs from every other worthwhile object in the world."

When the world works as hard to prepare for peace as it does to prepare for war, some astonishing results will follow. But probably not before.—Verndale Sun.

CHAPTER LI.

"AS soon as the business is settled, I'm going back to the city," Crystal announced when they were driving back from the cemetery in the Orville Wagner mourners' limousine.

"Me too!" Adelina said hastily, adjusting her widow's weeds, which were a little askew. With Abner six feet underground she felt safer. And hadn't Fred Roach, the realtor held her hand a bit longer than was necessary in offering his condolence? It was plain he admired her . . .

"All right. Only you're not going to come park on me. Get that in your head right away!"

"Why Crystal, is that any way to talk to Mama?"

"Don't start sniffling again, for heaven's sake. I just want to make it clear, that's all. I knew that would be the first thing you'd think of."

Adelina bridled. "Is that so? The poor old lady come to live on her daughter. Well! Let me tell you I have other plans, Miss, and don't you forget it. I can look out for myself, thank you; I am perfectly independent. Don't you forget that I am the widow, entitled to the bulk of the estate——"

"Oh, you'll get the bulk of it all right. You don't need to remind me of that, Mama. And I know better than to come to you for anything. I know you. Every dollar I've ever got out of you I've had to get down on my knees and beg for. It's a good thing I've got other friends, that's all—I'd have starved to death if I had to depend on you and that old skinflint of a husband of yours—counting every nickel——"

"Shh—don't speak ill of the dead, Crystal. He was a good——"

"Yes; I know what he was. Don't start that. As I said, it's a good thing I had other friends——"

"You'll never have another friend like your mother. And mama don't want you should talk that way. Mama knows you been a good girl, working hard at your art work and all, but what will other people think—" (with a side look at Daphne) "hearing you talk like that? Mama won't have it, You got to be more careful——"

"Mama—will you shut up?"

"No, I won't shut up. I'm advising you for your own good, and I don't want Daphne should think anything funny about you—"

Crystal laughed out loud at that. "Mama, you are so quaint! You even make me laugh, and when I can get a laugh out of coming back to the farm . . . oh, well! How soon do we get the money? Daphne, you're almost a lawyer, how long do these things take?"

"I don't know," Daphne said, and wriggled still deeper into her corner. It was almost unbearable. Reflected in the window she could see Adelina's face, red and bloated under the brassy hair. She could see her mean little eyes, her cruel, sensual mouth. "Poor father!" she thought, "he was lucky to get away. It would have been terrible for him if he had lived and been helpless, with her to nag him . . ."

But even that thought was not much confort. She sat, dry-eyed and tragic in her corner. As long as he had lived she had thought, "Some day he'll be different. Some day we'll get to really know each other . . ." And now he was dead. The day she had dreamed of would never come. He died as he had lived, a stranger to her. Unless it were that little moment at the end when he looked at her and tried to say something . . .

"Well, here we are," Adelina was saying.

They were back at the old house. The sun was shining, the orchard was a mass of feathery bloom. It was still beautiful, still Spring. And there were potatoes to peel, and peas to shell for dinner. Old Man Haines was dead but they had to go on living.

* * *

Crystal and Daphne sat up late. talking. Crystal was in one of her best moods, good-natured, scintillating, disarmingly frank.

"Mama would faint if she knew the truth about me," she said and giggled.

Daphne thought of Flora, and the things that Flora had hinted. The expensive apartment. That artist. Ralph. . .

"You mean — about your friends?"

"Yes, though I haven't so many at that. Just a few nuts and artists and a couple of big butter and egg men. By the way, did you make any friends in town?" Crystal asked curiously.

"Not so many. Just a couple where I live, and one or two where I work——"

"See much of McKevitt?"

Daphne bit her lip. But Crystal seemed so sincere, so honestly interested. As if she didn't care whether Daphne met him every evening or not . . . "No, I don't see him much. Not—not as much as I'd like to," she admitted, determined to be as frank as Crystal.

"I thought as much. He's a funny one. He's either bombarding the doorstep, or giving you the absent treatment. Mama thinks he'd be the ideal husband——"

Daphne's heart turned a somersault and seemed to rise and stick in her throat. Ralph. . . Crystal's husband . . .

"But I'm not so sure," Crystal went on, thoughtfuly. "He isn't so hot. I think it's up to a girl to look around a bit first."

Daphne began to breathe naturally again.

"Of course, all Mama can see is matrimony. That's the way with those old fashioned gold-diggers. But I don't know, I think a girl can do as well without it. Now I have a friend, Avery Woodward his name is . . . honestly, Daphne, I'm just mad over that man, and still I wouldn't marry him—not for a mint! I'd lose him, just like that, if I did. And then sometimes I think men are more generous when they aren't married to you than when they are. If you play your hand right. Still . . . the bills I have! I'm of a naturally optimistic nature, but I swear to goodness I don't know what I'd have done if your dear Pa hadn't kicked off about now.

"I don't know where the devil they came from. Say, I wonder how much we'll get? Do you think Mama has been cheating on us? I'll bet she's got a hoard somewhere about the house. What do you say we look? How about that cracked teapot in the sideboard? Or under the oilcloth on the kitchen table? What do you think, Daphne?"

Daphne shook her head seriously. "I don't think that there is much money left." She hesitated for a moment, then she added resolutely, "You might as well know it—I've been sending money home for quite a while. They needed it for the taxes and the interest on money father borrowed."

Crystal's mouth hung open. She looked at her step-sister with contemptuous pity that she made no attempt to conceal. "Well, you are the prize idiot!" she said at last.

From upstairs came Adelina's shrill tremolo, "Ain't you girls coming to bed? I won't shut my eyes till you do!"

"She even talks in her sleep," Crystal groaned. "Well — we might as well go up. This is the night before Christmas."

"The what?"

"The night before Christmas, same as I said before," Crystal explained, and did a few dance steps. "There's a lot you don't know, Daphne darling, and one of them is we see dear Papa's lawyer tomorrow!"

They went to Mr. Harris's office in San Jose, Dahpne and Crystal and her mother. Mr. Turner, the neighbor, drove them in to town in his ramshackle flivver and Crystal complained bitterly because there wasn't any top and the sun would fade her new blue hat.

"You ought to be wearing black anyhow!" Adelina retorted. "I'd like to know how it looks, the two of you going to collect my dead husband's money and not a stitch of mourning."

Daphne, wedged in the back seat between them, flushed guiltily, but didn't answer. She knew what the neighbors had said about her tan coat at the funeral, but she wasn't really mourning for her father, who was almost a stranger in spite of the years they had lived under the same roof, and she wasn't going to be a hypocrite.

But Crystal was angry. "I'm sure you've got on enough crepe for the whole family. You'd look a little more inconsolable though if you'd wipe off some of that paint. Good Lord, how I hate to see an old woman all made up. I hope when I'm your age I'll have enough sense to take to bonnets and not try to look young——"

Adelina rubbed at a bright pink cheek. "Is that any way to talk to Mama? When I was just trying to look a little brighter—"

"You succeeded all right. If you could see yourself in that bright sun! Don't you look in the mirror when you . . . here—let me—"

Adelina burst out crying then, and with a smothered "All right—do as you like," Crystal jerked away and slumped back in her corner.

It was a terrible ride. How can they do it, Daphne wondered? How can they fight that way? And yet she knew that for all their bickering they were prepared to take sides against her. Not that she cared. She knew there wouldn't be anything left to divide. Knew it long before they were sitting in Mr. Harris' dark little office and he had finished breaking the news.

ATHLETICS AND YANKEES OPEN VITAL 5 GAME SERIES SOON

DOUBLE HEADERS PLAYED FRIDAY AND SATURDAY

IF YANKEES DON'T STOP MACKMEN IN SERIES, HUGGINS MEN WILL BE OUT

YANKS PREPARED TO "SHOOT THE WORKS" AGAINST THE ATHLETICS

By GEORGE KIRKSEY
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

New York, June 20.—The Philadelphia Athletics and New York Yankees rested today in preparation for the opening of their vital five-game series at Yankee Stadium tomorrow.

Double-headers will be played tomorrow and Saturday, with a single game Sunday.

Around the American League circuit, belief is prevalent the Athletics must be stopped in this series by the Yankees or the pennant race will be just about over.

The Yankees are prepared to "shoot the works" against the Athletics, but do not share the opinion that Philadelphia will never be headed after this series if the Mackmen win a majority of the games.

A year ago the Yankees had a longer lead than the Athletics hold today, yet the Yankees, after increasing their lead to 13½ games, saw it melt away completely until the Athletics actually came to Yankee Stadium in early September leading by half a game.

Today's standing follows:

	W.	L.	Pct.	Games behind
Philadelphia	40	13	.755	——
New York	33	21	.611	7½

Standing a year ago follows:

	W.	L.	Pct.	Games behind
New York	44	13	.772	——
Philadelphia	35	21	.625	8½

The Yankees know how easy it is to fall into a slump after piling up a commanding lead and how hard it is to get going again—that's why they refuse to concede the pennant to the Athletics regardless of the outcome of the approaching series.

The Yankees will carry their full attack into action against the Athletics, with Bob Meusel and Babe Ruth back in the outfield.

Ruth returned to the lineup yesterday, replacing Cedric Durst in the sixth inning against the Boston Red Sox after being out of the game since May 31 with a bad cold. In his only trip to the plate he grounded out.

Meusel's batting eye does not seem to have suffered by his layoff. He made four hits in five trips yesterday.

Lou Gehrig has emerged from his long slump and is again hitting savagely. He made three hits yesterday, including home run No. 19.

Pitching will decide the series, according to Miller Huggins, who has Waite Hoyt, Tom Zachary, George Pipgras, Ed Wells, Fred Heimach and possibly Herb Pennock ready for work.

"To beat the Athletics we will have to stop Foxx, Cochrane and Simmons at the plate," Huggins said. "We can do this in a short series if we get the proper pitching. We stopped them last September. We can do it this June."

One very important factor of the coming series is the psychological advantage the Yankees hold over the Athletics—the knowledge that they always have been able to beat them in a crisis.

The Athletics showed signs of breaking the Yankees' spell over them in the early games this season by winning three of the five played and if they can crush the Yanks again this time it may be the beginning of the end for the world champions.

TROPHY WAS PRESENTED AT F. AND R. CONVENTION AT THE RADISSON INN TUESDAY

A beautiful silver trophy that stands two feet three inches is the possession of W. R. Hiller today to express to the northwest that he is the champion golf player of managers of the Finkelstein & Ruben theatre circuit.

The trophy was won by Mr. Hiller at the F. and R. convention golf tournament conducted Monday and Tuesday at the Minnetonka Country Club course. It was donated by the Radisson Inn, headquarters for the F. and R. convention which closed Wednesday.

The award was made to Mr. Hiller at the convention banquet Tuesday evening at the Radisson Inn by Ralph Branton, chairman.

Hiller turned in a score of 84 in the finals for the 18 holes.

The trophy bears the inscription: "Radisson Inn Trophy, won by W. R. Hiller, Brainerd, F. and R. Annual Golf Tournament, 1929." Miniatures of a golf player in the pose of completing a drive from the tee and several golf sticks are adornments to the cup.

Asks for Upper Berth

Found: A big league ball player who begs to ride in an upper berth.

He's Harold McKain, the new White Sox pitcher. He made this startling admission when he asked Traveling Secretary Lou Barbour "if it would be possible, please," to change his lower berth on the train for an upper. "I sleep much better in uppers," young McKain said.

"In my many years in baseball," Barbour said later, "I've met many remarkable situations, but this is the first time I ever heard of a ball player, especially a recruit, who refused to have high 'ideas' and admitted he'd rather ride in an upper. Quite a few believe it is more comfortable up there, but won't admit it."

Pitcher Carroll Struck Out Four in One Inning

P. Owen Carroll, who led the Detroit pitchers in games won last year, achieved a distinction while pitching for Toronto that few pitchers in professional baseball win.

In the little world's series of 1926 between Toronto and Louisville Carroll struck out four of the Colonels in one inning. Owen took the first two without accident and cut the third strike over on the third batter. But his catcher permitted the ball to roll away with the remark: "That's all right; we'll get the next one."

Carroll bore down on the fourth batter and struck him out, too.

Mere Man

Henri Daube, French painter, was speaking in cynical mood about the modern woman: "Nowadays, a lady's male acquaintance takes precedence in this order—her friend, her suitor, her dancing partner, her bridge favorite, her barber, her husband."

Fills the Breech

Clyde Beck, Cub star, proved that he is a handy man to have around when he dropped into Woody English's shortstopping position when Woody was forced out with an injury, and has been doing a sparkling job of it ever since. Clyde and Hornsby have formed a snappy double-play combination.

Yesterday's Hero—Melvin Ott, slugging outfielder, whose two home runs, four doubles and single counted eight runs for the New York Giants and aided them in winning a doubleheader from the Phils, at Philadelphia, by scores of 15 to 14 and 12 to 6.

The Chicago Cubs jumped from third to first place in the National league by taking both ends of a double header from the St. Louis Cardinals, at Chicago, 7 to 3 and 11 to 3. The defeats dropped the Cards from first to third place.

The Pittsburgh Pirates defeated the Reds, at Cincinnati, 6 to 5, to maintain second place in the National race. The Pirates bunched hits in the second, third and fourth innings for their runs.

The Broklyn Robins, who won both ends of a double header from the New York Giants Tuesday, went to Boston Wednesday and lost two games to the Braves by scores of 8 to 4 and 9 to 0.

The New York Yankees gained another half game on the leading Athletics by trouncing Boston, at New York, 13 to 2, while the Philadelphia team rested.

Emil Yde held the Indians to three hits in six innings and Detroit won at Cleveland, 8 to 3, in a game interrupted by rain.

St. Louis converted seven hits into five runs and beat the Chicago White Sox, 5 to 2, at St. Louis.

INTERNATIONAL HORSE RACE IS A GREAT EVENT

WINNER GETS $2,500 GOLD CUP AND STAKE OF ABOUT $15,000

INVERSHIM, IN WINNING, PAID HIS BACKERS 8 TO 1 IN RACE

Ascot Heath, England, June 20.—(UP)—Invershim won the $2,500 gold cup race here today, the biggest international horse race in Great Britain in many years.

Reigh Count, famous American horse owned by Mrs. J. D. Hertz, of Chicago, which had turned the favorite in the betting at 9 to 2 just before the start of the race, placed second.

Palais Royal was third horse.

The weather was dull as the race started, after a bright sunshiny morning. Harry Wragg had the leg up on the golden chestnut Reigh Count, which had not been the favorite a few hours earlier.

Invershim, in winning, paid his backers eight to one. Reigh Count paid four to one and Palais Royal in third place paid ten to one.

In addition to the cup, the race carried a stake of about $15,000 for the winner.

Invershim, owned by Reid Walker, won the distinction of taking the gold cup two years in succession. It was the first time a horse has won in two successive years since 1912-1913 when Prince Palatine ran to victory both years.

Caco, close to Reigh Count in popularity, ran fourth, two lengths behind. Reigh Count was three lengths ahead of Palais Royal, the crack French horse, owned by M. J. Wittouck, which was installed as the favorite by the bookmakers months ago.

Thirteen horses started.

N. P. MEETS FAST TEAM IN PINE RIVER CLAN, LATTER DEFEATED C.-I. 8-4

RICHMOND AND FOGELSTROM WILL GET THE BATTERY CALL AGAIN; PLAY AT ROSKO'S

The Brainerd Railroaders will be working for its sixth straight win in the Northwoods baseball league Sunday when they meet Pine River at Rosko's field.

The Pine River team has displayed a strong offensive so far this season. Sunday the team defeated Crosby-Ironton by the score of 8 to 4. Brainerd has also beat Crosby but by a 4 to 3 count.

Richmond and Fogelstrom will be on battery duty for the locals. Hanson, Petersen, Jarboe and Loom will form the infield with Nutting, Anderson, Erickson, Fitzharris and Hautala in the outfield.

Lakewood, N. J., June 20.—(U.P.)—Max Schmeling's newly acquired left jab continued to attract the attention of the experts who visit the German in his training camp here.

Marty Gallagher, who worked with Jack Dempsey several years ago, donned the gloves with the German and was surprised at the effectiveness of Max's left hand punch.

At the end of the session Gallagher declared he never faced a better hitter and indicated his belief that Schmeling would outbox as well as outhit Paolino Uzcudun when they meet in New York.

CANZONERI THINKS BASQUE WOODCHOPPER IS TOO NEAR THE EDGE

Hoosick Falls, N. Y., June 20.—(UP)—Paolino Uzcundun, who meets Max Schmeling in New York one week from tonight, was nearly ready for the bout today.

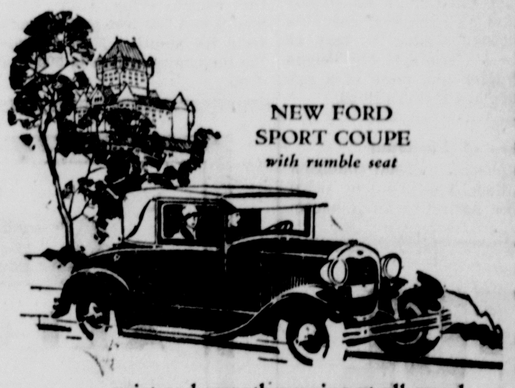

Paolino weighed 190, the weight he hopes to carry into the ring, and it is unlikely that he will work too strenuously during the final week for fear of going over the edge.

Tony Canzoneri, former featherweight champion who visited the Basque here yesterday, said he considered Paolino almost too near the edge and thinks the Spaniard may find it difficult to keep in the best of condition.

ATHLETICS AND YANKEES OPEN VITAL 5 GAME SERIES SOON

DOUBLE HEADERS PLAYED FRIDAY AND SATURDAY

IF YANKEES DON'T STOP MACKMEN IN SERIES, HUGGINS MEN WILL BE OUT

YANKS PREPARED TO "SHOOT THE WORKS" AGAINST THE ATHLETICS

By GEORGE KIRKSEY
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

New York, June 20.—The Philadelphia Athletics and New York Yankees rested today in preparation for the opening of their vital five-game series at Yankee Stadium tomorrow.

Double-headers will be played tomorrow and Saturday, with a single game Sunday.

Around the American League circuit, belief is prevalent the Athletics must be stopped in this series by the Yankees or the pennant race will be just about over.

The Yankees are prepared to "shoot the works" against the Athletics, but do not share the opinion that Philadelphia will never be headed after this series if the Mackmen win a majority of the games.

A year ago the Yankees had a longer lead than the Athletics hold today, yet the Yankees, after increasing their lead to 13½ games, saw it melt away completely until the Athletics actually came to Yankee Stadium in early September leading by half a game.

Today's standing follows:

	W.	L.	Pct.	Games behind
Philadelphia	40	13	.755	——
New York	33	21	.611	7½

Standing a year ago follows:

	W.	L.	Pct.	Games behind
New York	44	13	.772	——
Philadelphia	35	21	.625	8½

The Yankees know how easy it is to fall into a slump after piling up a commanding lead and how hard it is to get going again—that's why they refuse to concede the pennant to the Athletics regardless of the outcome of the approaching series.

The Yankees will carry their full attack into action against the Athletics, with Bob Meusel and Babe Ruth back in the outfield.

Ruth returned to the lineup yesterday, replacing Cedric Durst in the sixth inning against the Boston Red Sox after being out of the game since May 31 with a bad cold. In his only trip to the plate he grounded out.

Meusel's batting eye does not seem to have suffered by his layoff. He made four hits in five trips yesterday.

Lou Gehrig has emerged from his long slump and is again hitting savagely. He made three hits yesterday, including home run No. 19.

Pitching will decide the series, according to Miller Huggins, who has Waite Hoyt, Tom Zachary, George Pipgras, Ed Wells, Fred Heimach and possibly Herb Pennock ready for work.

"To beat the Athletics we will have to stop Foxx, Cochrane and Simmons at the plate," Huggins said. "We can do this in a short series if we get the proper pitching. We stopped them last September. We can do it this June."

One very important factor of the coming series is the psychological advantage the Yankees hold over the Athletics—the knowledge that they always have been able to beat them in a crisis.

The Athletics showed signs of breaking the Yankees' spell over them in the early games this season by winning three of the five played and if they can crush the Yanks again this time it may be the beginning of the end for the world champions.

Asks for Upper Berth

Found: A big league ball player who begs to ride in an upper berth.

He's Harold McKain, the new White Sox pitcher. He made this startling admission when he asked Traveling Secretary Lou Barbour "if it would be possible, please," to change his lower berth on the train for an upper. "I sleep much better in uppers," young McKain said.

"In my many years in baseball," Barbour said later, "I've met many remarkable situations, but this is the first time I ever heard of a ball player especially a recruit, who refused to have high 'ideas' and admitted he'd rather ride in an upper. Quite a few believe it is more comfortable up there, but won't admit it."

Pitcher Carroll Struck Out Four in One Inning

P. Owen Carroll, who led the Detroit pitchers in games won last year, achieved a distinction while pitching for Toronto that few pitchers in professional baseball win.

In the little world's series of 1926 between Toronto and Louisville Carroll struck out four of the Colonels in one inning. Owen took the first two without accident and cut the third strike over on the third batter. But his catcher permitted the ball to roll away with the remark: "That's all right; we'll get the next one."

Carroll bore down on the fourth batter and struck him out, too.

Mere Man

Henri Daube, French painter, was speaking in cynical mood about the modern woman: "Nowadays, a lady's male acquaintance takes precedence in this order—her friend, her suitor, her dancing partner, her bridge favorite, her barber, her husband."

Fills the Breech

Clyde Beck, Cub star, proved that he is a handy man to have around when he dropped into Woody English's shortstopping position when Woody was forced out with an injury, and has been doing a sparkling job of it ever since. Clyde and Hornsby have formed a snappy double-play combination.

Yesterday's Hero—Melvin Ott, slugging outfielder, whose two home runs, four doubles and single counted eight runs for the New York Giants and aided them in winning a doubleheader from the Phils, at Philadelphia, by scores of 15 to 14 and 12 to 6.

The Chicago Cubs jumped from third to first place in the National league by taking both ends of a double header from the St. Louis Cardinals, at Chicago, 7 to 3 and 11 to 3. The defeats dropped the Cards from first to third place.

The Pittsburgh Pirates defeated the Reds, at Cincinnati, 6 to 5, to maintain second place in the National race. The Pirates bunched hits in the second, third and fourth innings for their runs.

The Broklyn Robins, who won both ends of a double header from the New York Giants Tuesday, went to Boston Wednesday and lost two games to the Braves by scores of 8 to 4 and 9 to 0.

The New York Yankees gained another half game on the leading Athletics by trouncing Boston, at New York, 13 to 2, while the Philadelphia team rested.

Emil Yde held the Indians to three hits in six innings and Detroit won at Cleveland, 8 to 3, in a game interrupted by rain.

St. Louis converted seven hits into five runs and beat the Chicago White Sox, 5 to 2, at St. Louis.

BRAINERD'S ODDEST STORY OF TODAY

Agriculture has been delayed for some time in Brainerd and truck gardens have been slow reporting yields. Dr. C. A. Nelson, of 709 South 6th street however, is thought to have won first prize in being able to report fully matured green peas in his garden, which is a plot 50 feet square. The doctor has also set out Brussels sprouts.

Rather Lay Bricks

Floyd Carlson, crack pitcher of the Omaha Amateur baseball team, who has received several offers to pitch with big league teams, but which he has refused. Carlson is an expert bricklayer and as such can earn his $12 daily. Floyd figures he may as well stick to his trade if big league teams won't offer him more of a salary than he makes laying bricks.

"BIG BINGO," WORLD'S LARGEST ELEPHANT—WEIGHS TON MORE THAN JUMBO, AND STILL GROWING

Big Bingo is coming to town. Bingo is the giant of jungleland. He is the captain of all the elephants in the world. He can trumpet louder, eat more hay, drink more water and keep more peanut roasters busy than any pachyderm that has yet traveled America and he is still growing. When taken from his winter quarters it was found he had outgrown his car. He grew three inches taller during the winter months.

You can see Bingo with Robbins Bros. Circus here next Tuesday, June 25.

In a regularly supervised camel race held at Tunis, Africa, on March 6, 1926, one of four racing camels was clocked over a 3 1-8 mile course in 12 minutes, averaging approximately 3 minutes 40 seconds to the mile.

Deepest Rivers

The Amazon is the deepest river in the world, being 1,200 feet at its mouth and 620 feet one thousand miles from its mouth. Next is said to be the Saguenay, which is 500 to 600 feet deep.

VICTORS TREATED AT PINE HARBOR

Gust Almquist Welcomes Lions of Brainerd; Hector Hoenig's Team Reaps Spoils

Hector Hoenig's team reaped the spoils of victory last evening at Gust Almquist's Pine Harbor Inn. The team members, winners of the Lions club attendance contest were treated to dinner and program by the losers, Frank G. Hall and his team. Twenty-eight Lions were present.

Four Lions of the Aitkin club headed by Dr. Kelly were guests of the local club. Dr. Kelly again proved his popularity as an after dinner speaker. The program included songs by Dr. G. I. Badeaux and five Phillipino students of the University of Minnesota and waiters this summer at Pine Harbor Inn.

SPEAKS TO HALF MILLION IN ONE YEAR

Internationally Known Lecturer Coming

Private Peat spoke to over half a million people last year in the United States and Canada. He is one of the outstanding personalities of the American platform, and one of the best informed on international affairs.

Ever since Peat came to this country from the Western Front during the war and published his war book, "Private Peat", he has been giving his personal fighting experiences to tremendous audiences. Peat was born in the British West Indies, later moving to Canada, and enlisted in the infantry on the day that Great Britain declared war on Germany. He is now an American citizen.

Following the war he plunged with enthusiasm into the cause of world peace. Himself a war hero who has been grievously wounded and had escaped death only by the narrowest margins, no one could term him a pacifist. He knew the horrors of war, having drunk the cup to the dregs, and he proceeded to give all his tremendous ability to the task of striving to end war.

In his book "The Inexcusable Lie" and in his lecture of the same name he has set forth his ideas feelingly and convincingly. In magazine and newspaper articles he has drawn public support to his side. The Literary Digest has published some particularly interesting discussions of his views of the problems of post war conditions.

Private Peat is one of the platform's greatest dramatic actors. He is a brilliant student of world affairs, a magnetic and powerful speaker and, above all, a delightfully human personality. He lightens up all his lectures with the most captivating humor. The "Peat Smile" has become almost proverbial.

Peat believes that the peace of the world "lies in the building and crystallizing of public opinion to that end." He stresses the will to peace—not disarmament of guns or ships or arms, but a mental and spiritual peace.

No platformist is better equipped to speak upon the great question of the outlawry of war than Private Peat with his wonderful background and eleven years experience before the public. He has had entree to the great men and women of the nations and speaks with rare authority. He has the fire and enthusiasm of youth and the ability to convince any audience.

Private Peat will give an address on the second day of the Chautauqua season which starts on Wednesday, June 26.

But immediate relief has been found. A tablet called Rexall Orderlies has been discovered. This tablet attracts water from the system into the lazy, dry, evacuating bowel called the colon. Internationally Known Lecturer Coming

Private Peat spoke to over half a million people last year in the United States and Canada. He is one of the outstanding personalities of the American platform, and one of the best informed on international affairs.

Ever since Peat came to this country from the Western Front during the war and published his war book, "Private Peat", he has been giving his personal fighting experiences to tremendous audiences. Peat was born in the British West Indies, later moving to Canada, and enlisted in the infantry on the day that Great Britain declared war on Germany. He is now an American citizen.

Following the war he plunged with enthusiasm into the cause of world peace. Himself a war hero who has been grievously wounded and had escaped death only by the narrowest margins, no one could term him a pacifist. He knew the horrors of war, having drunk the cup to the dregs, and he proceeded to give all his tremendous ability to the task of striving to end war.

In his book "The Inexcusable Lie" and in his lecture of the same name he has set forth his ideas feelingly and convincingly. In magazine and newspaper articles he has drawn public support to his side. The Literary Digest has published some particularly interesting discussions of his views of the problems of post war conditions.

Private Peat is one of the platform's greatest dramatic orators. He is a brilliant student of world affairs, a magnetic and powerful speaker and, above all, a delightfully human personality. He lightens up all his lectures with the most captivating humor. The "Peat Smile" has become almost proverbial.

Peat believes that the peace of the world "lies in the building and crystallizing of public opinion to that end." He stresses the will to peace—not disarmament of guns or ships or arms, but a mental and spiritual peace.

No platformist is better equipped to speak upon the great question of the outlawry of war than Private Peat with his wonderful background and eleven years experience before the public. He has had entree to the great men and women of the nations and speaks with rare authority. He has the fire and enthusiasm of youth and the ability to convince any audience.

Private Peat will give an address on the second day of the Chautauqua season which starts on Wednesday, June 26.

RELIEF FROM CURSE OF CONSTIPATION

A Battle Creek physician says, 'Constipation is responsible for more misery than any other cause."

But immediate relief has been found. A tablet called Rexall Orderlies has been discovered. This tablet attracts water from the system into the lazy, dry, evacuating bowel called the colon. The water loosens the dry food waste and causes a gentle, thorough, natural movement without forming a habit or ever increasing the dose.

Stop suffering from constipation. Chew a Rexall Orderle at night. Next day bright. Get 24 for 25c today at the nearest Rexall Drug Store, Johnson's Pharmacy and Economy Drug Company. adv
